FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Compunetix and Sonexis Announce Acquisition

Complementary products enable strategic growth

Monroeville, Pa., August 20, 2008 – Compunetix, Inc. announced today a definitive agreement under which Sonexis Technology, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Compunetix, acquires the assets of Sonexis, Inc. of Tewksbury, Massachusetts.

Compunetix is the leading provider of carrier-class collaboration products for telecommunication service providers, large corporate enterprises, and government agencies. This agreement will extend its family of product offerings and increase the company's enterprise client base.

The ConferenceManager™ platform, successfully developed and marketed by Sonexis, complements the larger-scale offerings by Compunetix and will be distributed into worldwide markets.

"This arrangement represents an exciting opportunity for both organizations," commented Dr. Giorgio Coraluppi, Compunetix President and CEO. "The two product lines complement one another and will offer our existing service provider customers a greater ability to penetrate the managed services market."

"We are proud to become a member of this corporate family," adds Mr. Sam Foster, CEO and President, Sonexis, Inc. "Compunetix solutions, personnel, and customer base expand our ability to deliver compelling products and services into our market segments."
