FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Compunetix Launches Mobile Collaboration App

CONTEX Connections™ spurs group communications on the go

Monroeville, Pa., July 19, 2010 – Compunetix, Inc., the innovative manufacturer of collaboration technologies, continues its tradition of enhancing communication by offering a conferencing solution that is available wherever you go. CONTEX Connections™, developed for use with a CONTEX® platform, is a simple and efficient application that allows mobile smartphone users to create, manage, and control audio conferences directly from their smartphones. Whether in the office, on the road, or around the world, users have the ability to instantly initiate live, interactive meetings at their fingertips.

CONTEX Connections leverages Compunetix superior technology to extend the capabilities of Research In Motion® BlackBerry® devices. The menu-driven application is easy to navigate and allows users to quickly create, configure, and control their most common conferences. With one click, a user can effortlessly join a call. The application automatically recalls access information, eliminating the need to remember specific dial-in numbers or elaborate passcodes. CONTEX Connections also incorporates a customizable branded interface, making it an ideal and cost-effective tool for service providers looking to extend their corporate offerings. The convenience and efficiency of CONTEX Connections facilitates on-demand conferencing, while providing a high-quality call experience that fulfills the needs of mobile users.

“Our products and applications make collaboration an integral and intuitive part of business,” states Mr. Gerard Pompa, Vice President and Division Manager of the Communications Systems Division. “This dynamic application will redefine mobile group collaboration, providing an easily accessible, high-quality solution for end-users and service providers alike.”
