FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

New Features for Compunetix Web Collaboration

CONTEX Presenter™ 3.10.0 software update increases ease-of-use, productivity

Monroeville, Pa., September 7, 2010 – Compunetix, Inc. has released software update 3.10.0 for its CONTEX Presenter Web collaboration tool, increasing performance and adding productivity enhancing features for Collaboration Service Providers (CSP) and end users alike. Presenter is touted as the intuitive, reliable solution based on the award-winning CONTEX platforms known for unmatched voice quality. Features include updates such as one-click dial out capabilities, connectivity to Microsoft Outlook and the ability to include a Web conference to your calendar, upgraded server performance allowing for more participants, and the ability to bill multiple Host accounts to a single billing code for more efficient processing.

Service providers can easily customize Presenter; the look and feel can be configured per customer. Software brandability gives users an individualized experience and provides CSPs with the ability to offer flexible services. Multiple monitor support, the ability to support up to 256 clients in a single conference or multiple conferences, and improved performance makes Presenter 3.10.0 an attractive addition to a CSP's CONTEX Summit offerings. Presenter has all of the key elements of data collaboration, including remote application and desktop sharing, participant chat, a unified roster, talker indicator, and customizable language options, all with minimal setup or configuration.

"Presenter is the natural choice for CSP customers wanting to offer Web collaboration on CONTEX media platforms – the tight integration, impeccable quality, and intuitive features make Web conferencing easy for end users," notes Director of Software Engineering Mr. Benjamin Krokosky. "Our products are designed to tightly interface with the industry's best voice conferencing platform, ensuring increased productivity for end users and better business for CSPs."
