BT Conferencing Extends Contract with Compunetix

The global partnership expands with steady world-wide growth

Monroeville, Pa., January 6, 2011 – BT has extended its contract with Compunetix, the manufacturer of multipoint collaboration equipment and Web collaboration software. BT utilizes CONTEX Summits™ for reservationless (both public service and dedicated enterprise solutions) and event conferencing services. BT has deployed Compunetix equipment in the UK, US, Hong Kong, Japan, Taiwan, Italy, and India.

Mr. Jason Chin, CIO of BT Conferencing, states: "The Compunetix solution allows BT Conferencing to differentiate its services and create customized solutions for our customers. The reliability, voice quality, and functionality of the CONTEX Summits are excellent and the customer support provided by the organization is second to none."

"There is a great synergy between BT and Compunetix," states Ms. Monica Coraluppi, Compunetix Director of Business Development, EMEA. "BT is a leader in our industry and is continually reaching for new heights. The conferencing market redefines itself continuously and together we evolve and adapt to the changing demands of our end-users. This market is insatiable; the more end-users get, the more they want."

About BT Conferencing

BT Conferencing was established more than 20 years ago and is now one of the leading global provider of audio, video and web collaboration services. Year on year growth has seen the company out-perform the conferencing industry expectation and with its extensive global portfolio, is now one of the largest conferencing providers in the UK and Europe with current reach in more than 70 countries. BT Conferencing is based in the USA, EMEA and Asia Pacific and specializes in the delivery of reliable, robust and innovative conferencing solutions and product hardware to some of the largest companies in the world. The company offers tailor-made solutions to customers, whether they are small SMEs or major global businesses. With businesses now juggling to increase productivity, being more environmentally aware and at the same time looking to improve the work-life balance of its employees, conferencing and collaboration services provide a cost effective and time saving solution.
